DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species:

I. Drawn to a gaming machine and computer readable medium featuring a rotation control device for controlling the direction of rotation of a lottery board, first and second lottery ball throwing devices for throwing a lottery ball in opposite directions, lottery ball detecting means for detecting whether the lottery ball is thrown from either the first or second throwing device, and a rotation control device for determining the rotational direction of the lottery board based on the result of the lottery ball detecting device (i.e. controlling the rotational direction of the lottery board based on which throwing device the lottery ball was thrown from; emphasis added).

II. Drawn to a gaming machine featuring a rotation control device for controlling the direction of rotation of a lottery board, first and second lottery ball throwing devices for throwing a lottery ball in opposite directions wherein a lottery ball throwing control device selectively throws the lottery ball from either the first lottery ball throwing device or the second lottery ball throwing device based on the direction of rotation of the lottery board (emphasis added).

The species are independent or distinct because claims to the different species recite the mutually exclusive characteristics of such species. That is, the direction of rotation of the lottery boards may be determined by which lottery ball throwing device is used to throw the ball, or the lottery ball throwing device used may be determined by the direction of rotation of the lottery boards, but both cannot simultaneously be true. In addition, these species are not obvious variants of each other based on the current record.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, no claims are generic.

There is an examination and search burden for these patentably distinct species due to their mutually exclusive characteristics. The species require a different field of search (e.g., searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries); and/or the prior art applicable to one species would not likely be applicable to another species; and/or the species are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

The election of the species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the election of species requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected species.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the species unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other species.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141.
